BIDS FOR THEIR MANUFACTURE.

Opened for the Second Time at the Post-office Department in Washington—No Reduction on the Former Bids—Other Happenings in Washington.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 27.—Bids were opened yesterday for the second time at the postoffice department for furnishing the postoffice for four years, from Dec. 1, with adhesive postage stamps. There were but two bidders, the American Bank Note company, of New York, and the Franklin Bank Note company, of New York. Their bids were:

For ordinary postage stamps, the American Bank Note company's bid is 7 95-100 cents per 1,000. The Franklin Bank Note company, 8 25-100 cents per 1,000.

For ordinary stamps of the smaller size, the American Bank Note Company's bid is 7 52-100 cents per 1,000 on plain paper, and 8 52-100 per 1,000 on watermark paper.

For newspaper and periodical stamps, the American Bank Note company's bid is 18 cents per 1,000; the Franklin Bank Note company, 20 cents per 1,000.

For postage due stamps, the American Bank Note company's bid is 8 49-100 cents per 1,000; the Franklin Bank Note company, 9 99-100 cents per 1,000.

For special delivery stamps: The American Bank Note company, 18 cents per 1,000; the Franklin Bank Note company, 21 cents per 1,000.

The bid of the American Bank Note company this time is a trifle lower than its bid of July 17. The bid of Charles F. Steele, of Philadelphia, submitted on July 17, and which has neither been accepted nor declined by the postmaster general, is lower than either of the two bids submitted yesterday, and was the lowest bid submitted July 17.

Investigation of Electrical Industry.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 27.—Owing to the wonderful growth, during the past decade, of the electrical industry, the superintendent of census has decided to have a special investigation of the subject for the report of the census of 1890. It will be intrusted to A. R. Foote, of Cincinnati, who has been recommended for the position by nearly all of the leading firms engaged in the industry, and other prominent people generally.

Rocky Mountain Grass.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 27.—The agricultural department has received a specimen of timothy grass grown on the Rocky mountains at a height of 10,500 feet. The specimen will be planted at one of the experimental stations with other specimens of grasses the department is now experimenting with, with a view to obtaining some grass that can be successfully grown in the arid region for fodder.

Assumes His Duties.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 27.—Judge Goff, the commissioner of the general land office, took the oath yesterday and assumes the duties of his new position. A number of changes are expected in the land office soon.

A Name Mentioned.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 27.—Alfred Russell, of Detroit, is the latest mentioned possibility for the vacancy in the supreme court. Secretary Proctor, a former classmate, is interesting himself in him.

Watch Case Trust Broken.

CANTON, O., Sept. 27.—When the great Dueber watch case works were moving here from Cincinnati and the Hampden works from Springfield, Mass., with 5,000 people, the $11,000,000 watch trust combined on the Dueber enterprise and expelled it from the association. At that time this trust controlled the jobbers of the country. This compelled the establishment of individual jobbing houses from Boston and New York to Cincinnati. A dispatch from New York says that four of the largest jobbers in the country from Boston, Chicago, New York and Buffalo have gone out of the trust. The fight has been the most bitter ever known and the independent manufacturers and jobbers are undoubtedly now coming out ahead. Prices have been slashed to pieces on trust time-pieces but the boycott against the independent is now certain to prove futile.

A Woman's War Against Saloons.

FORT WAYNE, Ind., Sept. 27.—Mrs. Thomas Woods, of Warsaw, Ind., has begun an active war against the saloons of that place. Some time ago she served notice upon the proprietors of several saloons, forbidding them to sell liquor to her husband, who is an ex-county clerk and prominent in the business world. These notices were uniformly disregarded, and a few days ago she entered one of the drinking places and smashed a costly mirror. Tuesday she went into Rossean's saloon, threw a hammer through a large mirror, and broke the front windows of the place. She was not arrested, and public sentiment is in her favor. She says she means to keep up her peculiar style of warfare till the sale of liquor to her husband is discontinued.

Mysterious Death of a Young Lady.

WILLIAMSPORT, Pa., Sept. 27.—Alice Wetzell, 17 years old, of Herndorn, died in a mysterious manner in the house of Lydia Gotschall, in Purdytown, a suburb of Sunbury, Tuesday night. She had evidently taken poison, as the body when found indicated that she had suffered intense physical agony in her death throes. An investigation will be made.

ARMY OF THE TENNESSEE.

The Society Elect Officers and Transact Other Business at Cincinnati.

CINCINNATI Sept. 27.—The Army of the Tennessee held its business session at College hall yesterday afternoon. The principal officers, Gens. Sherman, president; Hickenlooper, secretary, and Force, treasurer, were re-elected, and the association listened to a valuable military paper, written by Capt. Ramsey, of Chicago, and read by Col. Jackson in the absence of the former. On Gen. Rusk's motion thanks were tendered to Col. How for his marvelous oration at Music Hall. On Gen. Dodge's motion, the thanks of the association were tendered to the resident members, to the city of Cincinnati, to Maj. W. H. McComas, who designed the ornamentation of Music Hall, and to Gen. Hickenlooper, under whose direction the grand reception has been given the association.

Gen. Green B. Raum read a lengthy resolution, which the association indorsed, whose principal was an expression in favor of liberal pensions to the families of old soldiers. Another resolution was passed favoring the substantial recognition by congress of the important services of the military telegraph corps of the war.

Last night there was a brilliant banquet at the Burnet house, given in honor of Gen. Sherman, under the auspices of the Loyal Legion.

ETTA ROBBINS INSANE.

The Young Woman Horse Thief of West Virginia Adjudged a Lunatic.

CHARLESTON, W. Va., Sept. 27.—At the present session of the grand jury of Putnam county Etta Robbins, the female horse thief, was indicted Tuesday on two counts for horse stealing. She was taken before the judge of the circuit court of Putnam county yesterday, and succeeded in having the cases continued.

She gave bond in the sum of $100 for her appearance at the next term of court. Upon being released she was taken before a justice of the peace and adjudged a lunatic, and turned over to her father, who gave a bond of $100 to take care of her. She left Winfield and is now probably out of the state.

Oil Exporters Fail.

NEW YORK, Sept. 27.—Pagenstecher & Company, until recently the largest exporters of petroleum in the country, assigned yesterday. The direct liabilities are stated at $20,000 to $40,000, and contingent liabilities $300,000, on accommodation acceptances and endorsements for Andrew Brown, of Buffalo. Mr. Brown's omission to take care of this paper is given as the cause of the assignment. Mr. Brown is a leading lumber merchant. Pagenstecher & Company have been thought by the trade to be in difficulty for some time past.

Cute Americans.

MONTREAL, Sept. 27.—The minister of customs has ordered an inquiry into the smuggling of whisky into Canada. Whole shiploads of American whisky are being brought into Canada by the St. Lawrence route. The vessel takes half a cargo of whisky and half a cargo of plaster. Then it unloads plaster and a portion of the whisky at an intermediate port and obtains a clearing sheet, after which it runs into some other port on the strength of its clearance sheet and unloads the greater portions of the whisky free of duty.

Enforcing the Anti-Trust Law.

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo., Sept. 27.—The anti-trust law passed by the last legislature authorizes the secretary of state to bring suit and revoke the charter of any corporation engaged in a trust. Yesterday that official sent a blank form of oath and a circular letter of interrogatories to every corporation in Missouri. A failure to subscribe to the oath and a refusal to declare that the company addressed is not connected with any trust is held sufficient cause for revocation of charter.

Forming a Constitution.

CHEYENNE, Wy. T., Sept 27.—The constitutional convention yesterday selected Cheyenne as the seat of government for ten years, or until a majority of the people vote a change. Grant lands may be sold at any time for not less than $10 per acre. The coal mine chapter favors the laborers. Educational provisions are very liberal. The oath of office prescribed in the constitution is extremely rigid and contemplates abolishment of boodle campaigns.

Repetition of Other Days.

CHICAGO, Sept. 27.—The work of securing a jury in the Cronin case was resumed at 1 p. m. Of the four men passed temporarily, two were excused for cause and two challenged peremptorily by the defense. Fifteen veniremen were examined. Ten were excused for cause, one challenged peremptorily by the defense and one by the state. Three were held over night, their examination not being concluded when court adjourned.

The State is Losing His Grip.

NEWBURG, N. Y., Sept. 27.—At the annual parade of the Matteawan and Fishkill Landing fire department yesterday John L. Sullivan and his combination gave an exhibition in a ring on the parade ground. Sullivan was just recovering from his debauch and the affair was very tame. Sullivan came from Boston in the morning in charge of his brother, who watched him closely all day. He left last night for New York.

Duel in Mexico.

CITY OF MEXICO, Sept. 27.—A duel has been fought in this city between Adelberto Estava, a lawyer and editor of The Nacional, and Pedro Prida Artenza. The latter was wounded in the side by a revolver shot. The cause of the affair was an altercation between the young bloods at a recent ball.

Seething Liquid Fire.

A Perfect River of Molten Iron and Cinder

OVERTAKES SEVEN WORKMEN.

Two of Them Fatally Burned While the Others Are Seriously Injured—A Peculiar Accident in the Edgar Thomson Steel Works, at Braddock Pa.

PITTSBURG, Sept. 27.—Furnace "C," of the Edgar Thomson Steel works at Braddock, was not working satisfactorily yesterday, and at 7 o'clock in the evening Capt. W. R. Jones, manager of the steel works, together with six of his men, went to work to remedy the trouble. It was discovered that a hard crust of cinder had formed inside of the furnace. An orifice fifteen inches in diameter was made through the side of the furnace stack, which is eighty feet high and twenty in diameter.

Through this hole a heavy iron bar was used to break the under crust. In an instant the crust gave way and a perfect river of molten iron and cinders rushed through the aperature, literally covered Capt. Jones and his workmen in a sea of flame and hurling them in all directions. Capt. Jones was picked up from the sand pit, fully forty feet from the stack. The others were lifted about the same distance, in other directions. A Hungarian who was in the party has not yet been found.

The injured are: Mike Quinn, foreman, fatally burned; Harry Connell, probably fatally burned; Patrick Burns, seriously burned, and John Nee, seriously burned.

Capt. Jones is terribly burned and his physicians are apprehensive but hopeful.

The scenes immediately following the accident are almost beyond description. The immense stock house being fairly overflown with the seething liquid fire. The injured were brought to the hospital here. The damage to the furnace property is not great.

A WILD DUMMY.

It Descends an Incline and Plays Havoc With a Stone Wall.

EASTON, Pa., Sept. 27.—An accident that came near being attended by loss of life occurred last night on the electric railway that runs from the public square in this city to near Paxinosa inn. The road runs up Chestnut street to College Hill, and the grade there is so steep that a dummy car was recently put on the line to prevent the cars from getting beyond the control of the conductors.

The dummy in some manner got out of gear, and started down the grade at lightning speed. At the foot of the incline the car jumped the track, plunged into a wall at the Bushkill bridge, and sent a shower of stones into the kitchen of the residence of Mrs. Holmes. The next car down the grade was filled with passengers.

Suffocated By Black Damp.

POTTSVILLE, Pa., Sept. 27.—William Irvin and his helper, a Polander, left their homes on Tuesday evening last, and went to work as usual in Lawrence & Brown's colliery at Mahanoy Plane. They failed to return yesterday, and a search was at once instituted, which resulted in the finding of the bodies of both men at the bottom of an abandoned working. Both had been suffocated by black damp. It is believed that the Polander had strayed into the working, and Irvin went to look for him.

Crazed By Jealousy.

BRADFORD, Pa., Sept. 27.—At Mount Alton, sixteen miles from this place, John Quinn shot and killed his wife at 11 o'clock yesterday with a Winchester rifle. The cause of the crime is said to be unjust jealousy. Quinn claims that his wife had been intimate with a man named Brennan. After shooting his wife Quinn started after Brennan with the Winchester on his shoulder, but was disarmed by Constable Washburn, and taken to Smithport and lodged in jail.

Candle Light.

CINCINNATI, Sept. 27.—The grease ware house of the Emery candle works, at Ivorydale, was totally destroyed last midnight. The loss will reach $75,000; partly insured. The flames originated in the cooperage shop. Five tanks, containing 25,000 barrels of oil, narrowly escaped the flames. The burned buildings contained 400 barrels of grease, one hundred barrels of tallow and several immense tanks, all filled with valuable material.

Good Size Mining Deal.

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 27.—The Mulatos mining district in Sonora, Mexico, has been sold to Hayward & Hobart, mining millionaires of this city, who paid nearly $2,000,000 for the property, which includes half a score of rich but imperfectly developed mines. The purchasers propose to put in an improved plant. This is the biggest mining transaction recorded here for years.

Another Storm on the Jersey Coast.

ASBURY PARK, N. J., Sept. 27.—Wednesday night's storm and high tide increased the damage done to the shore by the recent great storm. Bulkheads were damaged, bluffs washed down, lawns spoiled, cottages undermined, etc, at this point. Long Branch, Monmouth Beach and other points along the coast clear up to Sandy Hook.

Gold in Tacoma.

TACOMA, Wash., Sept. 27.—Gold has been found almost within the city limits of Tacoma. Over forty mining claims were filed yesterday in the auditor's office by prominent men.

REMEMBERING THE REDS.

Anarchists Will Celebrate November 11 in Many Cities.

NEW YORK, Sept. 27.—The Anarchists in America are preparing to honor in characteristic fashion the memory of their four colleagues who were hanged in Chicago. The anniversary of the event will be Nov. 11. On that day the Anarchists of New York, and such labor organizations as are in sympathy with them, will have a big parade, and will afterward hold a mass meeting in Cooper institute. John Most and his allies are determined to make the demonstration a success.

In Pittsburg a mass meeting will be held in Lafayette hall on Nov. 9. There will be speeches in English and German and the hall will be decorated with four large pictures representing the social revolution, and past, present and future of the laboring classes.

Meetings will also be held in Baltimore, Cincinnati, Providence, Philadelphia and Chicago. In Chicago it is probable that Mrs. Parsons, widow of the "martyred" Anarchist, will be the principal speaker.

Lynchers After a Negro Fiend.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Sept. 27.—A special from Decatur, Ala., says that a negro named Tom Haywood, who lives on the farm of Mrs. Thomas Williams, confessed to that lady that he had killed her husband, who was mysteriously murdered about a year ago. When making his confession Haywood presented a revolver at the head of Mrs. Williams and compelled her to agree to sell her property and flee with him to the north. Being at the mercy of the negro fiend she pretended to consent to his proposition. She afterward escaped and notified the authorities. The negro has not yet been captured, but he will undoubtedly be lynched if caught.

Misplaced Switch Accident.

NEW YORK, Sept. 27.—The Haverstraw express from Jersey City, on the New York and New Jersey railway, ran into a freight train on a siding at Ladi junction, last night, causing a bad wreck of the engine and several freight cars. None of the 200 passengers were injured. Engineer Theodore Sherman relates when he saw the misplaced switch, and though he could not avert the collision he saved the passengers by sticking to his post. Fireman William Young jumped and was badly hurt. He was also terribly burned by being showered with vitriol from a wrecked car that contained the acid. He will die.

A Settlement Near.

SPRING VALLEY, Ill., Sept. 27.—W. L. Scott has sent for the arbitration committee of the miners' association here to meet him in Chicago to-morrow with a view to a resumption of work in the Spring Valley mines. He has receded from his determination not to treat with any committee or organization, and everything now points to a speedy settlement of the mining difficulties in this district. The miners will resume work only on prices equivalent to those paid at Streator. Another carload of provisions was distributed yesterday.

Desperate Tramps.

MARSHALLTOWN, Iowa, Sept. 27.—Two tramps took possession of the town of Holland last night, intimidating the constable and setting fire to a building with a broken lamp. They went to Reinbeck, whom they were overhauled by the sheriff. In attempting to arrest them Archie Neat, who was helping capture the tramps, was shot in the neck by one of the tramps, receiving fatal injuries. The prisoners were brought to this city to save them from lynching by the infuriated citizens of Reinbeck.

Society All Broke Up.

OSWEGO, N. Y., Sept. 27.—Alfred M. Crotty, a New York commercial traveler, and Miss Lydia E. Bennett, daughter of Andrew J. Bennett, of this place, have eloped. Yesterday Mrs. Bennett received a letter from their daughter postmarked Watertown, N. Y., which read: "Mother, I am married. Will be home soon. Lydia." The affair has caused quite a sensation here among young society people. It is believed by many that Crotty is a married man.

On Trial for His Life.

WILKESBARRE, Pa., Sept. 27.—David W. Thomas, a policeman of the borough of Edwardsville, three miles west of here, is on trial for his life. On the night of the 15th of last June he entered the house of Thomas Schelling, uninvited, and placed Schelling under arrest without cause. Schelling resisted and Thomas shot him dead. The general opinion is that he will hang, as the commonwealth made out a very strong case against the prisoner.

Ravages of Typhoid Fever.

KEMPTON, Pa., Sept. 27.—Typhoid fever is very prevalent in the northern townships of Berks and Lehigh counties. A number of deaths have occurred near this place. In the family of Edwin S. Lutz ten persons were ill at one time. The grandmother and two sons died. The others are improving. Jonas Fritz, a farmer, died last night and several of his children are down with the disease.

MOORESTOWN, N. J., Sept. 27.—Last night thieves made a raid on the passenger railway stations at Pensaukin and Maplesshade, and cleaned them completely out of tickets, money, clothing, and everything of value they could find.

Mobilizing Troops.

One Hundred Thousand Soldiers to Guard London.

THE CAPITAL IN NO DANGER

But the English Army Officers Must Have Something to Do So as to Have the Appearance of Earning Their Salaries. Minister Phelps Calls on the Emperor of Germany—Other Foreign News.

LONDON, Sept. 27.—The Duke of Cambridge, commander-in-chief of her majesty's forces, has formally signified his approval of a plan to mobilize 100,000 volunteers for the defense of London. This is not to be taken as signifying alarm at the defenseless condition of the metropolis, but only as one of the schemes which army magnates have to busy themselves with from time to time in order to keep up an appearance of earning their salaries.

Not that the duke himself feels imperilled by necessity to any such show of activity, but that he is willing to play his part in the comedy by giving his sanction to the ingenious devices of younger officers. The mobilization will furnish employment for a host of otherwise idle subalterns, and at the same time will remove all ground for the occasional croaker to lament in The Times the possibility of an enemy capturing London some day before breakfast, and while the army is yet abed.

The Emperor Receives Our Minister.

BERLIN, Sept. 27.—Mr. William Walter Phelps, United States minister to Germany, presented his credentials to the emperor yesterday. He was cordially received, and conversed with the kaiser for some time. The emperor detained Mr. Phelps conversing so long that the American minister and Count Herbert Bismarck, who accompanied him from Potsdam, missed their train.

Count Herbert Bismarck last night tendered a dinner to Minister Phelps, which was attended by a number of attaches of the American legation and visiting diplomats.

In presenting his credentials Minister Phelps spoke of the relations between Germany and the United States as having never deviated from open cordiality. He would shirk no effort to maintain and if possible strengthen the historical friendship of the two countries. He reviewed the prominent part taken by liberty-loving Germans in aiding the American struggle for independence, and in since promoting the National welfare of the country.

The emperor, responding, spoke in English. He said the minister's utterances afforded him great pleasure. From early youth he had greatly admired Americans, whose history, so largely characterized by peace, had always excited his especial interest. Among the many eminent qualities of the Americans, their spirit of enterprise and sense of order, and above all, their inventive genius attracted the attention of the world.

Mostly Assumed for Effect.

LONDON, Sept. 27.—The alleged reluctancy of the German emperor to give his august approval to the marriage of his sister with the Crown Prince of Denmark is merely assumed for effect. Protestant princes are not so plenty on the continent that there are many sprigs of royalty eligible for the hand of the Princess Margaret.

The condescending terms in which the German official press speak of the contemplated alliance are sufficiently amusing in view of the desirable position held by the northern power, which, if the marriage takes place, may be in future considered as virtually, if not openly bound to the destinies of Germany. As a maritime power producing a famous race of sailors, and covering practically the few German seaports, Denmark will be able to prove herself no despicable friend in the hour of need.

It may be easily believed that the czar is furious at the prospect, and in view of the ties which bind the Danish royal family to him it will hardly be wise for the arrogant German monarch to display any real or pretended dislike to the match too openly.

A Gun Boat to the Rescue.

ATHENS, Sept. 27.—The Greek government has sent a gun boat to protect the leaders of the Cretan insurgents committee, who have taken refuge in Melos. Reports from Crete say that the Turkish soldiers on the island dishonor women, and imprison and torture Christians with impunity.

DYNAMITE SCARE.

An Alleged Attempt to Blow Up the Independence, Mo., Court House.

INDEPENDENCE, Mo., Sept. 27.—Yesterday a dynamite bomb was found lying in an angle of the court house wall, partially concealed by rubbish. It was made of an ordinary gas pipe, six inches long, each end closed with plaster of paris, pierced at one end with an ordinary blasting fuse twenty inches long. In another part of the town the following note was found:

"Light in on it to-night. Bombs are all ready. One at The Sentinel, one at the court house and one at the jail. The town is as dead as —. We will blow her up and and make things likely.

"J. S., President."

A search failed to reveal any bombs at the two other places mentioned. Many citizens are frightened by the discovery, and fear the buildings will be destroyed. Others treat the affair as a hoax.

In the first half hour the market was firm and the whole list advanced fractionally, but this was lost by 11 o'clock, and the lowest prices were current up to that hour. There was a fairly active business in the hour to noon. Business was well distributed, and prices advanced throughout. Union Pacific was the feature, advancing from 63 to 63¾. The coal stocks were also strong. Jersey Central advanced from 123 to 125. The rest of the list was up ¼ to 1 per cent. by midday. At this writing the market is dull, but firm.

A WOMAN BOUND AND GAGGED.

During Robbery of a Station on the Pittsburg and Lake Erie Road.

PITTSBURG, Pa., Sept. 27.—Yesterday afternoon three men entered the Pittsburg and Lake Erie railway depot at Brighton station, and demanded money from Mrs. McGotten, the company's agent. Mrs. McGotten boldly defied the thieves but before she could summon aid she was bound and gagged and thrown into a corner of her office. The thieves ransacked the station thoroughly, securing a large amount of money and other valuables.

When discovered, Mrs. McGotten was unconscious. She has since remained delirious, and scarcely able to articulate. Her wrists and limbs were terribly cut and swollen, so tightly was she bound. As yet no clew to the perpetrators has been discovered.

U. B. CONFERENCE.

The Annual Session of Ministers and Delegates Being Held in This City.

The Central Ohio General conference of the U. B. church convened at the Pleasant church, two miles south of town, Wednesday. Bishop J. Dickson, of Chambersburg, Pa., was elected presiding officer; Rev. J. B. Kesler, of Westerville, O., assistant chairman; Rev. A. E. Davis, secretary. Among the general officers of the church who were present were W. J. Shuey, Rev. J. Hill, Rev. D. R. Miller, of Dayton, and Rev. S. M. Hippard, of Otterbein University. About fifty ministers and twenty-five lady delegates from abroad were in attendance.

The reports show commendable progress in all departments of the church. The examinations were passed without complaint, with the exception of G. Hoffhines, whose name was taken from the roll of the conference, he having been found affiliating with the secession movement, by Bishop Wright.

The report of the U. B. Publishing House shows that it is progressing successfully, as about $12,000 have been paid in dividends to the church.

The Rosetta Stone.

Foremost in the rare and instructive exhibit of the Chicago Academy of Sciences, at the Inter State Industrial exposition, is an authenticated fac-simile of this famous and invaluable key to the recorded history of nations, preceeding by centuries the fulfillment of the promise of the star of Bethlehem.

The original stone, now the treasured possession of the British museum, was discovered near Rosetta, in lower Egypt, in the month of August, 1799. The inscription in three languages, first Hyeroglyphics, second Demotic and third Greek, records a decree issued at the coronation of Ptolemy Epiphanis, at Memphis, 198 before Christ.

In contemplating this relic of antiquity, the student of archeology may happily contrast the advantages of existence today and, it he may be appreciative of its pleasures and opportunities, will not neglect the privilege extended by the Chicago and Atlantic Railway, of traveling on Tuesday, Oct. 1st, by special train, at rate of less than one-half cent per mile, to the mighty metropolis, which has made possible the Annual Inter-State Exhibits, and today pledges 10,000,000 of her dollars for the creation of a World's Exposition, which shall, in magnitude and magnificence, challenge the admiration of the universe.

Resolved; That we as teacher and fellow pupils feel that in their deaths we suffer great loss and that as an outward token of our inward grief, we, at a proper time hold appropriate memorial services and fittingly drape the school room.

Resolved; That we are in close sympathy with the bereaved parents and relatives, who have been robbed so suddenly of these priceless jewels.

A Card from Miss Felty.

The party who wants to be set aright before the public as to the report in the Columbus Dispatch of Sept. 21st—"the unfortunate affair"—can not do so and tell the truth, as the report is the truth and I am ready to go before a court of justice and swear that I was knocked down by my enemy. The only misstatement was that I was assisted to rise by a lady friend.

Several new crossings have been laid in town and yet we need more of them.

We should like to ask some of our supervisors if they are not aware that they lay themselves and the trustees liable to prosecution by allowing the weeds to go to seed along the road? This is a nuisance that should be looked after, as in some places they impede travel. A good illustration can be had by driving east across the red bridge, where the weeds are so high you can't see over them to tell whether another team is coming, and frequently parties meet right on the bridge and one of them is compelled to back off; they also form a good ambuscade for ghosts from the cemetery.

The Turning of the Leaves.

A lunch was given at Flushing, L. I., last week to celebrate the turning of the leaves. The walls of the dining room into which the guests were ushered were painted a yellowish cream, with brown tones in the frieze and a flush of red in the cornice warming the brown. The fireplace and the deep window seats were filled with maple boughs flashing from yellow into the most vivid crimson. Maple boughs hung from the chandeliers, and twigs of maple and oak and brownish yellow chestnut leaves filled a huge old yellow bowl that stood in the middle of the table. The hostess wore a cream colored silk, with brown brocade redingote and crimson sash, and flaming leaves fluttered down through the menu cards that lay by the napkins. Each guest received as a favor a chestnut twig bearing a prickly burr, which, when opened, proved to be a satin lined bonbonniere.—New York Mail and Express.

Caledonia Communication.

Our "golden egg" seems very nauseating to ex-Supt. Ranck, as shown by his letter in the Argus week before last. We didn't think he'd swallow it whole, but he did. Did you write that article, Mr. Ranck? We doubt it, for you are surely capable of writing a more manly one.

No one has to sacrifice political and religious fealty to retain the superintendency of a public school; they have nothing to do with each other. Jot that down for future use. He says the figure of keeping or breaking the golden egg is overdrawn. If so, why did he go to one of the board and rave like a mad bull when he was notified that his services were not needed any longer? Why did he indorse the idea of circulating a petition to the board for his retention "to find out who his friends were?" Why did he organize a ring to fight the board, which ring, collectively, has been the author of all communications to the press? Why has he left no stone unturned to get the superintendency if he has not tried to keep the "golden egg?" "Lightning speed to cover many pages is not his method." We are aware of that fact—there's no lightning about him; one would have to drive a stake to see if he moved. He needs an electric battery in his coat tail to keep him up with the world. Our life's race is run on a lightning express now and not on a stage coach. He covered many pages by assigning certain sections to each scholar, and that section was all they knew of the lesson. He advocates a change in the district because advancement is right. Why didn't he think of this during the past seven years? He didn't care for advancement so long as he was drawing a big $600 salary for special school work, but as soon as the special school board didn't want his services any longer he could go to Columbus and get counsel on changing the district, simply to oust the old board and get a new one that would favor him. That's his idea of advancement. Don't this show that he wanted to break the "golden egg" if he couldn't keep it? We did not think of frightening voters by what we said about the change, but to set them to thinking and investigating. You know the result of their investigations. We may be sort of a non compos mentis individual, yet we seem to have professors 2+1 on the same boat. He became disgusted with an incident before Prof. Smith was hired and would not have accepted the schools but on one condition (which, we suppose, was if the board would hire him). Now, that's too thin; it won't wash. If you would not have accepted the superintendency why did you write Prof. Smith a personal letter of intimidation, stating that the masses wanted you and only the board him, and that he would meet with trouble on all sides here? And why were two anonymous letters (manly, weren't they) written him, advising him that the "masses" (we suppose thirty-five) were against him and for you? Why did your ring write to other parties to find a flaw in Smith if possible? Does this show your statement to be true? No! we answer; nor does it show that you have a true feeling for the welfare of the schools and success of Prof. Smith, but that you wanted the "golden eggs"—$600. These letters can be produced, if needs be. Mr. Ranck, you have whined like a whipped cur for the sympathy of the people, but have lost that all except thirty-five) through your babyishness. We want a man to superintend our schools and not a lady. You are worse than the seven-year itch - the itch can be got rid of in seven years, but you can't, for you still hang on to keep us scratching until death. The board acted honorably with you and paid you for what it contracted with you to do; you had no right to expect the school longer, for the board did not give you a life lease, and after due consultation notified you of the fact. It is your own fault if you are cut off from teaching. But enough said, so we will close with the advice: Hereafter be a man, Lewis, be a man.

Now, Mr. "Rebel," we haven't much left for you, as you are one of the gang we have just exposed. As to the quotations you referred to we will simply say for you not to try to put the load on us, but hunt up some of the signers of your district changing notice; and about the other, "Remember the Sabbath day to keep it holy," we had no use for it unless it would be to keep your ring from turning a religious service into a campaign meeting. Magnanimity is the virtue of large natures while revenge is the vice of little minds. We fear that you have been so feeding the passion of revenge that you become unmindful of the etiquette your station would seem to demand. While we note with pleasure the energy shown in your efforts to come out on top we cannot admire the nature of them. It is much better to pour out on troubled waters than to keep agitating them.

You reminded me of the two tramps who thought they'd preach. One could not read, but was a good singer, while the other one was gifted in the art of much speaking. For convenience we will call one R and the other W. They were to divide the work, and so W turned to the eighteenth chapter of Proverbs to read, while R sat convenient to prompt him in a low tone, and began reading as follows: R (quietly)—He that separateth himself seeketh according to his desires and intermeddleth in every business; W (in strong full voice) repeats it; R A fool hath no delight in understanding, but that his heart discovereth itself. a fool's lips enters into contrition, and his mouth calleth for strokes; W Repents, and put his finger on the line so that R could not see; R (quickly) Take your finger off the line; W- Take your finger off the line; R There, you've played hell; W There you've played hell. Tableau. So we all might judge from the result of the election, where each voter could quietly give his feelings. Again you remind us of one of our townsmen who had a case in the Bucyrus courts a few years since, which he used every effort to win but failed. After coming home he was telling about it, and said that he had one of the best cases ever in court, but could not make the d--- d--- jury believe it. So the voters could not be induced to see it.

Your brags that "we would not have any school this winter" were made too soon. Neither "Progress" or "Rebel" have shown a single advantage to be gained in changing the district, except giving us a board of six members. Yes, we are seeking light, but you have failed to give it to us. We will expose all such rottenness as your ring has advocated as long as we can use a pen.

Be true to your God, your country, your town and yourself, "Rebel," and you will have no cause to "Write me down as an ass." CLIP.

P. S This ends our school controversy, C.

The Octogenarian Cardinal.

Cardinal Newman, who is now in his 89th year, cordially receives American visitors whenever his health permits. He is simple to a degree in his habits, getting up until quite lately, even if he does not still, between 5 and 6 in the morning, both in summer and winter. He then says mass in a chapel adjoining his bedroom, and afterward takes his breakfast and during the day presides over the meals of the fathers at 1 o'clock and at 6. On great feast days, such as that of St. Philip Neri, who founded the congregation, or of Sts. Peter and Paul, the cardinal conducts the service of benediction for the boys in the school chapel, but even this light effort has been more than he could frequently undertake during the last two or three years.—Boston Journal.

Should any vacancy occur in such commission, the senators of the party making the original designation shall, within ten days thereafter, designate an elector to fill such vacancy, and he shall forthwith be appointed by the Governor.

SEC. 3. The population of the state, as ascertained by the preceding Federal census or in such other manner as the General Assembly shall direct, shall be divided by the number "one hundred and ten," and the quotient shall be the ratio of representation in the House of Representatives for the ten years succeeding such apportionment.

SEC. 4. Each county shall be entitled to at least one representative; each county containing such ratio, and one-half over, shall be entitled to two representatives; each county containing two and one-half times such ratio shall be entitled to three representatives, and so on.

SEC. 7. The state shall be divided into not less than thirty-five nor more than forty senatorial districts, as herein provided, and each district shall choose one senator.

SEC. 8. The ratio for a senator shall be ascertained by dividing the population of the state by the number "thirty five."

SEC. 9. Each senatorial district shall be composed of compact territory, as nearly equal in population as practicable, and except as to districts in counties entitled to two or more senators, shall be bounded by county lines.

SEC. 10. Each county having a population equal to three-fourths of one senatorial ratio shall constitute a senatorial district. SOME SENATORIAL FADS.

BLAIR'S BENEVOLENCE AND LACK OF ORDERLY HABITS.

Methodical John Sherman—Cutt in Public but Charming at Home—Mr. Evarts' Love for Literature—Businesslike Spooner—Ingalls is a Hard Worker.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 23.—Senator Blair, of New Hampshire, is a man of many eccentricities. His fad is benevolence. He is a member of the pension committee of the senate and makes no end of trouble for his colleagues by his invariable desire to pass every pension bill brought before the committee.

Though his private benevolence is up to the average, but no more, to his public benevolence there is no limit. If the good senator had his way about it all the taxes would be kept at top notch and the surplus revenue would be used in educating the poor people of both south and north, pensioning soldiers, relieving the necessities of all destitute and in setting up with a mule and a farm of forty acres every deserving but indigent husbandman.

SENATOR BLAIR AT HIS DESK.

One of the senator's peculiarities is his lack of method and orderliness. He has no more idea of method than an owl has of oratory. Out of one of his vest pockets I have seen him take thirty or forty little pieces of paper, all rolled up in wads. These were memoranda, and before he could pick out the one he wanted all had to be unrolled and examined. All of his pockets are filled with scraps of paper of every conceivable shape, size, state of wear and importance of contents. During a session of congress his desk in the senate chamber is always covered with books and papers, sometimes the pile rising so high that the senator can just look over and see the face of the presiding officer. One of the senate pages says the inside of his desk looks as if a grab bag had been emptied into it.

Senator Blair's desk in the room of the committee on education and labor is one of the curiosities of the Capitol. It is covered with such a mass of matter that one can only with difficulty make sure that it is a desk at all. In the front part of it the senator contrives to keep a little clear space, just big enough to hold a piece of writing paper, and here he writes many letters to his admiring constituents. Senator Blair gets an enormous mail. All the good people who get up plans for the amelioration of human misery promptly set their schemes before him. He gets more begging letters than rich Senator Stanford and makes it a point to answer all of them.

Senator Sherman, who has just returned from Europe, is a perfect contrast to Senator Blair. The Ohio statesman is orderliness itself. His desk in the senate contains but few papers or letters. At his committee room he keeps nothing but documents pertaining to the committee, all of his personal papers and correspondence being attended to in the library of his house on K street. Here he uses a large flat table, almost as big as a billiard table, and its surface is occupied by books, papers, letters, inkstand and other paraphernalia of the literary workshop on a plan which admits of no variations. A diagram of that table drawn ten years ago would perfectly describe it now, and ten years hence, if the senator lives so long, it will do just as well.

Senator Sherman, by the way, has two sides to his nature. These are what may be termed the outer and the inner sides. Everybody, I know, has an exterior and interior nature, but in the senator these are so full of contrast as forcibly to attract one's attention. Mr. Sherman is everywhere known as a cold, uncongenial man. This he undoubtedly is in the senate and in all public places, but in his library he has manners that are very warm and winning. I called on the senator one night last winter at his home. Having previously met him only in the Capitol or other public place, I did not expect to get much thawed out while in his home and presence. Imagine my surprise and delight when, on my entrance, the senator rose from his work table, walked a half dozen steps toward me, extending his hand and smiling, and afterward pushing a big leather chair nearer the grate and with his own hands stirring the fire in my honor. About all this, particularly the stirring of the fire, there was something sweetly hospitable. A more delightful conversation than the senator and I had that night I have not enjoyed for many a day.

Not more than a week later I met Senator Sherman in the Capitol. It was in the lobby, directly in the rear of the chamber. He was on his way to his committee room via the senators' private stairway. Though nothing had occurred to change the relationship existing between the senator and myself, he did not on this occasion seem like the same man I had met in the library on K street. He barely paused as I spoke to him, answered my question as curtly as possible, and then hurried on to the stairway which none but senators' feet may tread. Of course Mr. Sherman did not intend to be rude or even curt, but one likes to remember him best as he is seen by his own fireside.

Senator Evarts is a rather jolly man in his library. While you are sitting half lost in admiration for the wonderful head which the senator carries on his shoulders, he is telling you of some pretty or laughable incident. Mr. Evarts' desk at home is chiefly devoted to letters and monthly magazines and reviews. Of letters he receives a very large number, and personally answers precious few of them; but he delights in the reviews, and reads them very carefully. Did I say "reads?" "Devours" is a much better word. The day I was in Senator Evarts' library there were four monthly reviews on his table, all but one of them opened and turned flat down, as if the reader had intended taking them up again soon. Senator Evarts endeavors to "keep up with" the literature of the day, and is very strong on sociological and economic topics, religious and metaphysical discussions. What reviews the senator himself would make could he concentrate that great beadful of brains upon one short article!

Senator Spooner's desk is that of a business man. There is no disorder about it, nor yet none of that painful primness seen on Senator Sherman's. To reach Senator Spooner's library you go up a long flight of stairs, turn to the right through a narrow corridor, then to the left, up another flight of stairs, a few more turns to right or left, and there you are. Timid people who call on the senator after nightfall cannot help thinking of goblins and gallows trees, for it was in the yard of this old house that Wirz was hung, and many other state prisoners were confined during the war. The old Capitol prison is now a row of modern looking houses. Justice Field lives in one of them, and Senator Spooner in another. Spooner has a fashion of letting his work go all day and evening. During those golden hours he is too busy talking with friends to waste any time at the drudgery of correspondence.

About midnight, however, when Wirz's ghost begins to walk (if it walks at all), the senator settles down with his private secretary for three or four hours of solid toil. Before he goes to bed everything is cleared up; no day's tasks are permitted to encroach upon another day's time. How Spooner manages to keep these late hours and at the same time to be up early and as fresh as a daisy next morning is one of the mysteries which the cloak room gossipers of the senate chamber have not solved.

Senator Blackburn dislikes to write letters, dislikes to read letters and is an indifferent and uncertain correspondent generally. He has an odd habit of allowing his mail to accumulate for four or five days, and then going at the whole lot with a rush and a whirl.

Senator Farwell often does the same thing. If it were not for their private secretaries these and many other senators would fall far behind in their correspondence.

Senator Ingalls is an indefatigable worker at his desk. The famous senator's library is but little larger than an ordinary bed chamber, and the desk at which he works is both small and plain. But there are plenty of books about, and choice books they are, too. Ingalls is another burner of the midnight oil. He cares little or nothing for society, and is content five days out of six to walk from the senate across the park and one street to his home, there dining and then repairing immediately to his library. The senator bends closely over his work, writes in a small but legible and regular hand. One of his peculiarities is a fondness for working by gaslight. Even in the day he pulls down the shades over his library windows and lights the drop lamp on his desk. Ingalls is such a hard worker at his desk that his friends have begun to suspect him of some great literary ambition. He does considerable work for the periodicals, and is able to command pretty high rates for his contributions.

Quite a number of statesmen are turning their hands to the literary trade. Certain editors of periodicals think articles signed by senators and well known representatives more valuable than those signed by their regular corps of contributors, a strange notion, indeed, when one considers the fact that The Congressional Record, made up entirely of the thoughts of senators and representatives, is the one periodical in this country which nobody pretends to read.

Concerning this fad for statesmen contributors to the magazines an interesting story is to be told. Last winter a congressman who had won some reputation with a single speech was invited by the editor of a famous monthly periodical to write a short article on a subject germane to the one discussed in his speech. As compensation the editor offered two hundred dollars. On receiving this letter the congressman sought out a certain newspaper correspondent.

"Here," said the statesman-author to the scribe, "how does this strike you? Since it was you that wrote the letter part of my speech, it is only fair that you should write the article which this editor wants, sign my name to it and take the $200 yourself." It was done. ROBERT GRAVES.

SOME ADVERTISING STORIES.

Combination Ads—How a Circus Advertiser Was Circumvented.

[Special Correspondence.]

NEW YORK, Sept. 23.—At the close of the war Memphis had seven daily papers. Each of these felt that it was necessary to live, and the rates charged for advertising space were high. High and smooth board fences were abundant throughout the city, and a great many medicine men thought large glaring advertisements thereon would reach about as many people as in any of the seven papers, and the brush artists were kept busy announcing, in big letters, the wonderful effect of various patent nostrums. A certain bitters concern, after figuring with a number of local painters upon the cost of lettering, employed a leading fence artist and had a number of large signs placed on these board walls, but unfortunately the painter left considerable blank space at the bottom of each of these advertisements, and, on the morning after he completed his work, it was discovered that an undertaker's announcement had been placed thereon, making the ad. read: "Use ——— Bitters, and buy your coffins of Smith."

A few weeks since the manager of a well known Omaha paper was called upon by the press agent of a well known circus relative to making a contract for space in his paper, which should announce the coming of a great aggregation of wonders. After selecting the space wanted, the question as to circulation was raised, and the manager submitted for the inspection of the circus man an affidavit just made, showing the actual runs on each day's issue of the paper, to which, after glancing over it, a very uncomplimentary reply was made by the advance man. The newspaper man held his peace, however, and negotiations proceeded. The press agent was bent on practicing economy, and only figured on about half the space that was really needed. After carefully measuring the inches, and figuring just what could be crowded into them, he asked what price would make him the owner of said space, and was informed that it would be at his disposal for the time mentioned in consideration of an order on the circus treasurer, denominating the sum of $50 as a fair compensation for the good work that would result to the circus, and the delight which would accrue to the small boy whose eyes would feast upon the cuts contained in the ad.

"Fifty dollars, did you say?" gasped the circus man. "Why, I don't want to buy your paper. Now, say your very lowest sum." "Sixty dollars, now," remarked the manager of the paper, "and if you make another break like that the price will be seventy." "But you just a moment since said fifty dollars for that space. On what grounds do you add the extra ten dollars?" "For contempt of rates, my dear sir, and you will pay sixty dollars for the ad., or you won't get a line in this paper." "Do you intend to stick to that?" queried the press agent. "I certainly do, and you may close at that or keep out." Finding that there was no backdown on the part of the head of the business department, the contract was made out at the sum originally named, plus ten dollars added as fine for contempt, and the circus man went over to his special car, where he could, in solitude, administer to himself the kicking he felt was so richly due him for his bad break. HORACE DUMARS.

In the journal of a lady recently deceased were found these words: "I expect to pass through this world but once. Any good thing, therefore, that I can do, or any kindness I can show, to any fellow creature let me do it now. Let me not defer or neglect it, for I shall not pass this way again."

These words are worthy to be placed where we can see them constantly. Each day, each week, each year, comes but once.

A Great Race.

BOSTON, Sept. 27. The much-talked of race for a week between the yacht Puritan, owned chiefly by Commodore Forbes and the Mayflower, was sailed yesterday in a fresh breeze and heavy sea, and resulted in so clear a victory for the Puritan as to settle all doubts of her superiority.
